GRAND RALLY.

Last Meeting of Democrats Before the Great Fight.

There were a number of persons who attended the rally at the court house last night but the majority of the hard workers went to bed early so as to be ready for the fight to-day. No set program had been arranged and as the crowd began to call for Hinchman the mayor mounted the platform and began to speak. In his prefatory remarks the mayor was several times interrupted by some one in the rear of the house. Finally Mayor Hinchman got warm and jerking off his coat threw it over on a chair near him. The voice hushed. The mayor made a straight democratic talk full of valuable suggestions and at the close addressed himself to the colored people present and told them it was time for the colored people to emancipate themselves from the chains of slavery with which they were bound to the republican party.

When Mayor Hinchman concluded Mr. D. H. Hardy was called for and he responded, making an eloquent, burning, enthusiastic speech for Cleveland and Mills.

Mr. Jas. B. Baker was then called for and addressed his remarks principally to the colored people, and he showed them with what fairness they had been treated during his administration and by its president. He offered to bet ten dollars to one on Mills election, but no one would take him up.

Mr. Joe W. Taylor was next called for and devoted his speech to Col. E. A. Jones, whom he handled without gloves.

Capt. J. E. Elgin followed, and after the conclusion of his speech the meeting adjourned.

Levy Taken to the Franklin Jail

Bremont, Nov. 5.—Deputy Sheriff J. W. White started for Franklin with M. H. Levey, the murderer of Judge Joiner, this evening accompanied by six other well armed men. No trouble is anticipated en route. Levy will be brought back to this place Wednesday or Thursday for an examining trial.

Burned to Death.

Wabash, Ind., Nov. 5.—The residence of John Coomler, a farmer living eighteen miles from here, was destroyed by fire yesterday morning, and a twelve year old son of Sam Shotley, who was visiting them, was burned to death. The remainder of the inmates of the house escaped with difficulty, not being able to save anything but their clothing.

Anchlog's Confession.

San Francisco, Nov. 5.—Anchlog, the murderer of the Hitchcocks and of old man Fuegh, has prepared a written account of his life and crimes, which fills two columns. It differs but little from the confession he made, except that he gives new details of the butchery of the Hitchcocks, the unfortunate Illinois couple, whose fruit farm he coveted.

Everything passed off quietly at the polls to-day.

The Mexican and His Blanket.

Did you ever hear anybody say "Don't hurry off in the heat of the day without your blanket?" It is a very common expression in the rural districts of the west and south. Well, in Mexico the expression is used as a remonstrance against the departure of a guest. Every Mexican, on coming to town from the country, carries a blanket with him. He does not go to the hotel and ask for lodgings, but finds shelter at almost any private house, particularly among the poor. He then lies down upon the stone floor, rolls himself in his blanket and goes promptly to sleep. In the morning he awakens at daylight, and, asking the blessing of heaven upon the house which sheltered him, he goes out to some plaza and there boils his coffee in the open square.—"R. M. Y." in St. Louis Republic.

Ice Water in Brazil.

"The use of ice water in this country is universal," said an old doctor, "but in Brazil it is but little used. It was thought that a factory for producing artificial ice would be very profitable there, where the temperature is very high. An English syndicate constructed the necessary works, but found that the natives would not touch ice water. Then, to tempt their palates by creating an appetite for it by constant use, the company placed free tanks of ice water upon the street corners of the cities. It was a novel plan, and the fruits of the investment are being borne. The use of ice water is increasing, but it is not yet a universal beverage."—Chicago Herald.

Something New in Leather.

Persons on the outlook for odd things in the way of foot gear have something new in leather in what is called by the trade Korodan. This is really horse hide, a small part of the skin from the rump of each animal being available for the shoes. It is said to be pleasant to wear, and to last forever or thereabouts. The supply comes from the wild horses of South America and from the zebra and quagga of Asia. The demand is not yet so extensive as to threaten the extermination of those species.—New York Sun.

Blind People in Russia.

An elaborate investigation has shown that the number of blind people in Russia is very unequally divided among the different races, there being only 8 blind in each 10,000 Poles, 19 in each 10,000 Russians, and as many as 83 in each 10,000 Votyoks. No less than one-eighth of the cases of blindness are due to small pox, and only one-half to direct eye diseases.—Arkansas Traveler.

Some Things to Remember.

I have been told, even in cultivated, intellectual circles, that a young woman had better be in the kitchen or laundry than in the laboratory or classroom of a college. "Women should be trained," such persons say, "to be wives and mothers." The finger of scorn has been lightly pointed at the mentally cultivated mothers and daughters who are unable to cook and scrub, who cannot make a mince pie or a plum pudding. Such persons forget with surprising facility all the cases of women who neglect the kitchen to indulge in the love sick sentimentality to which they have been trained; who think too much of possible matrimonial chances to endanger them by scrubbing, or by giving ground for the suspicion that they cultivate any other faculty than the power to apostrophize the moonlight and to long for a lover. They do not care to remember that it is no whit better to wither under the influence of ignorance or sentiment, to cultivate a fondness for "crush," than to dry up the sensibilities like a book worm, or grow rigid and priggish as a pedant.

It is as bad to stunt human nature as to over stimulate it—to stop its progress in one way as in another. The danger is in going to extremes. The mass of men choose the golden mean, and we may trust women to avoid extravagance in the pursuit of learning. We may and ought to give her every help in the direction of life that her brothers possess. It is no longer doubtful, it is plain, that whatever other rights woman should have, those of the intellectual kingdom ought to be hers fully and freely. She should be the judge herself of how far she should go in exploring the mysteries of nature and of science.—Arthur Gilman in The Century.

Fermented Juice of the Grape.

Wine is the fermented juice of the grape, and is distinguished from other fermented and alcoholic liquors by containing bi-tartrate of potash, a constituent of the grape. Blackberries, currants, and other berries, by fermentation, will yield a wine, but the name of the berries from which obtained is always appended to the vinous product. When the term wine alone is used the fermented juice of the grape is signified, and anything else is a misnomer. The numerous varieties of wine are occasioned by difference of soil, climate, season, and by the kind, quality and condition of the grapes as to ripeness, the mode of fermentation, and by the manner and temperature at which the wine is preserved, and by its age.

The strong wines, such as sherry, port and Madeira, are made from grapes that are thoroughly ripened, and which, on account of containing a large amount of sugar, yield, when fermented, a greater amount of alcohol, which will range between 18 and 25 per cent. Claret contains about 12 per cent, and champagne about 10. Sweet wines, like tokay, are made from grapes so ripe that they are almost shriveled up to raisins, and therefore contain much sugar, and the fermentation is arrested before all the sugar is converted into alcohol, which will hardly reach 10 per cent. Champagne is bottled before the fermentation is retained in the wine, to be given off only when the bottle is opened. It is, perhaps, not too much to say that most wines exported from European wine countries are adulterated.—Professor W. P. Toney in Baltimore Sun.

To Shampoo One's Own Hair.

Half the pleasure of having the hair washed and groomed is to have some one do it who knows how. In England, in the large stores, there is a department of hair dressing where an accomplished barber, with every convenience for showering and drying, will wash the hair of ladies for one shilling. In this country a good shampoo cost from fifty cents to $1—which is a large sum for so simple an operation.

After combing the snarls from the hair, braid it loosely and bind the end with a small elastic band. Draw tepid water in a basin and first wash the scalp thoroughly with castile soap; then let the braid fall in the water, soap it and wash as if clothes. Afterward thoroughly rinse and wring the braid in a towel. Wipe the head dry, and the braid will brush out, beginning at the lower end, when it will not tangle. Let the hair loose in the sun and air and it will dry in less than half an hour. A woman's hair should be washed at least monthly if kept fine and healthy.—New York Evening Sun.
